

ANDREW A.K.A. SHOWTIME

Official Q&A

Q: When did you first develop an interest in seduction arts?

A: My attention has always leaned towards the subtleties of communication between people. Knowing how and why people react to certain causations eventually lead me down the path of seduction arts. Tie that intellectual interest in people with the fact that I simply follow my physiological inclination towards women and that is how I came to study the seduction arts.

Q: What's the most valuable lesson you learned during your training?

A: Throw caution to the wind and just do it. You have to trust that your natural instincts will guide you through what you perceive to be afraid of. Nothing in your life will change when you stay idle.

Q: In your opinion, what are the key characteristics of a successful pick-up artist?

A: A successful pick-up artist has a passion for the game, knows his strengths, knows his weakness, constantly improves, has a superior level of social experience and has balls of steel. With that definition of what a pick-up artist is; that is what I am.

Q: Who has been your biggest influence?

A: Growing up, my grandfather always encouraged me to be positive and go after what I want to. This positive reinforcement at an early age set the foundation for the man that I am and will become. He was like a pick-up instructor in the sense that he would send me out to approach women as a child and gave me a lot of reading material on social psychology in my teens.

Q: How have you impacted the lives of the men that you've consulted and trained?

A: I'm all about giving people the truth and a solid skill set to improve one's life. My delivery may not always be flowery, but if the intent to improve yourself is sincere then you will be in for an amazing surprise. Many of the men that I've taught never realized how simple meeting beautiful women can be and have more options with women than they ever had in their entire lives.

Q: What has been the biggest milestone of your career?

A: My biggest milestone would have to be when I approached a woman who most men would be intimidated of during the day time. This was so profound to be since she was nearly about to rip my head off in the initial stages of the interaction but eventually had a 20 minute instant date which then turned into a first date. I can guarantee that there are very few men who could have done that. This further solidified the confidence I have in my ability to meet and attract women.

Q: What makes you a recognized leader in the PUA community?

A: I'm really good at what I do and can prove it.

Q: When working with clients, what are some of the key factors that prevent men from succeeding? How do you help them overcome these obstacles?

A: Either men aren't dominant enough or are dominant but needy. For those who lack dominance, it's a matter of thinking less and doing more. For those who are dominant but needy, it's a matter of thinking more and doing less.

Q: What's the most valuable piece of advice you could give to a man struggling with meeting and attracting women?

A: Experience leads to success and failure. However, with enough success comes confidence, and women love confident men. You should always seek competency to match your confidence. So basically, get out there and just do it.
