

DASH NG

ABCs of Attraction Certified Coach for Australia

Born in a refugee camp in Vietnam, Dash Ng is a Chinese-Vietnamese immigrant who was able to escape the poverty of Vietnam after being sponsored to live in Australia by relatives. Growing up in Australia was tough as he had to deal with racism, being short (5'7), skinny and the typical Asian male stereotype often portrayed on the various media. This has largely shaped Dash's early goals in life and perception of interracial dating. He never even considered dating non-Asian women only recently in the last 3 or so years.

Dating was not even on the table during High School for Dash having his first kiss at 18 years old and losing his virginity at 20. He was the typical late bloomer in the dating scene. Having gone through 3 painful rejections during his late teenage years led him to research on how to interact with women.

His first realization was at 19, when the girl who rejected him posted a blog entry indirectly talking about the situation and how men and women can't be friends if one party is attracted to the other. She also linked a popular Internet theory called 'The Ladder Theory', which was the first step to Dash's education that being just that 'Nice Guy' doesn't get you girls. And that often, jerks end up with the girl. This theory was later shattered after receiving a book titled 'The Game' by Neil Strauss for his 22nd birthday (2009). This sparked his interest in pick up which led him to learn 'The Mystery Method'.

This led to his 2nd realization that girls don't necessarily like jerks but girls want a wide range of emotions, so essentially, someone who is in between a 'Nice Guy' and 'the Jerk'. In other words he decided that being the 'Coolest Most Interesting Guy' she ever met. Dash continued his quest of discovery by taking massive action and going out on average 2-3 times a week constantly for the next 4 years.

Dash decided to learn the ABCs of Attraction System from JT Tran in 2014 as Dash appreciated the holistic, well-rounded approach to confidence and lifestyle building that JT emphasized.

Dash's style of Game leans more towards the 'natural style' of game with very few canned routines and lines. He prefers to go as direct as possible without putting the girl on a pedestal. He focuses on inner game such as being genuine and honest with your intention when interacting with girls.

Being in the moment is a big part of Dash's game as he believes it gives you freedom from focusing on the outcome as you having fun while interacting with girls. Dash also focuses on other aspects of self-development such as staying fit and eating clean. Building a career as well as growing spiritually are on the top of his list in terms of the overall goals.

Since starting into pickup, Dash has dated his fair share of beautiful women ranging from 'Import' models, Miss Chinese contestants, and exotic dancers. In time, while he is open to dating women of all races, he hopes to settle down with a high quality woman closest to him in cultural background.